This session is designed to teach organizations how to properly promote mental health in the workplace. The different stages of the mental health action plan will provide strategies employers can use to improve emotional wellness among their workforce.

A major 2017 study on behavioral health and work found that these programs “show a consistently positive return on investment.” In other words, it pays to support employees’ emotional well-being.

Register today for this webinar and get the resources you need to help support your employees’ mental wellness.

Course Objectives

At the end of this course participants will be able to:

- Illustrate why focusing on mental health in the workplace matters
- Recognize common signs and symptoms of a mental health crisis
- Define the different stages of the Mental Health Action Plan
- Use essential communication skills when supporting others

Who Should Attend?

Human resources professionals in benefits and benefit design, health strategy, risk management, employee engagement, health promotion, wellness and welfare, total rewards, case management and other areas.

Speaker

Mark DeFee, Licensed Professional Counselor, Account Management Executive, Behavioral Health & EAP, Anthem, Inc.

Mark DeFee is a licensed psychotherapist and account executive who works exclusively with Anthem's national accounts. He supports Anthem's medical account teams by being a subject matter expert for any Employee Assistance Program-related questions. DeFee keeps accounts educated on available Behavioral Health & EAP services, and delivers trainings on various work-life and wellness topics.

Before moving into sales and account management, DeFee spent eight years on the operations side of the EAP field. His experience includes consulting with companies on how to promote mental health as well as properly address behavioral-risk issues. He also provided counseling to employees, including those in immediate crisis.

DeFee joined Anthem in 2010 and has been in the EAP field since 2004. He received his bachelor's degree in psychology from Texas Tech University and his master's degree in counseling psychology from the University of Denver.
